☒ Exclude user 1 from handshakes

This prevents users from making a handshake with the administrator. They may contact the admin via the site's contact form.

☒ Exclude users with the administer handshakes role from handshakes

This prevents users from making a handshake with administrators that are not user 1. This would occur in the case where the site is able to employ additional help and/or when the site is run by someone other than the person that sets things up. Users with this permission and this box checked are assumed to not interact with other users as a normal user. If that is not the case, you may want to create two accounts for that user - a regular, and an administrative. Users may contact the admin via the site's contact form.
